Online Shopping Habits

Online shopping has been around for a while, but who uses it most, and what are their habits? Read the following testimonials and find out!

A Marlene

Like a lot of people of my generation, I was a bit wary of putting my credit card details online, so I hadn't really done much online shopping until a couple of years ago. You hear so much these days about people losing all their money in Internet scams. But then my niece introduced me to online grocery shopping and I haven't looked back. I was having trouble doing my weekly shopping. I don't drive, so I relied on buses and taxis to get me to the supermarket. She suggested that I do my grocery shopping online and have everything delivered to my door. Then she showed me how to set up an account and how to place the order. I couldn't believe how easy it was, to be honest. The online downside is that it costs me about £20 more per month, which really adds up. So, I find I have to budget a bit more carefully.

C Freya

I guess you could call me a bit old-fashioned, but I think it's really important to support local businesses. For that reason, I've never shopped online. Well, actually, that's not strictly true. I bought a wedding gift for some friends who live abroad and had that delivered to them because it was more convenient. But I get all my fruit and veg from the local market because I know most of the produce is local – and usually much cheaper than supermarket stuff. I go to the local butcher for meat and the bakery for bread. It's a bit of an effort, but I guess it's important for me to feel connected to the community I live in. I'm really against enormous global companies. It feels like local businesses find it difficult to compete, so I want to support them as much as I can.

B Aidan

Although my girlfriend absolutely loves clothes shopping, I really can't stand it. The worst thing of all is having to go into the changing rooms and try things on. Luckily, I haven't had to do that in a long time because I order almost all of my clothes online. I might go into a shop if I want something for a party or a wedding – a suit or shoes – but most of my clothes come from a couple of websites. Most of them offer free delivery – some of them even do free, next-day delivery and if things don't fit or don't suit me I send them back. I've never had a problem with losing money when I shop online because I make sure I only shop on secure websites where the risk is low. I don't do my food shopping online, but I occasionally buy Christmas presents and household stuff from websites I trust.

D Luca

I manage an IT company, so it would be a bit unusual if I didn't do it! In fact, that's the way I do almost all my shopping. I work long hours, so I don't have time to go wandering around shopping centres and supermarkets. I also hate standing in queues and waiting around for things so I book train and plane tickets online as well. Holidays, hotel rooms, clothes, birthday presents. Pretty much everything really. The only thing I don't buy online is golfing equipment. I'm a huge fan of golf so I get a lot of pleasure from going to a golf shop and trying out the clubs and bags and talking to the shop assistant and all that stuff. It's also important to try the equipment out before you buy it to make sure it's right for me. It just wouldn't be the same if I had to buy it online.

E Sam

I'm trying to make an effort to live environmentally friendly, which is why I've decided that buying local and in "real" shops should be part of my lifestyle. All this ordering and especially sending stuff back that you don't want or that doesn't fit is hugely detrimental to our environment, and is a cause of waste in terms of energy, material and resources. However, as I start jumping up and down when standing in line, I avoid the busy times and don't go shopping during peak hours. Above all, I take pleasure in buying groceries in zero waste shops. It's so much fun choosing the exact quantity you want!

Part 4 Writing (15 points, 15 minutes recommended)15 P

Read part of an email which you have recently received from an English-speaking friend, Pat, who needs some advice on a piece of writing she's doing.

I'm doing a college project on famous people in different countries. Could you tell me about someone famous in your country? Why is this person famous? What do people in your country think about this person?

Do you think being famous is a positive or negative thing, and why?

Would you like to be famous, and why (not)? What would you like to be famous for?

I'm looking forward to hearing from you!

Love,

Pat
